

In a world at the moment, filled with fear and sorrow, there is a light that shines in all of us.

And when tragedy strikes,
and a family grieves,
this light shines bright to heal their hearts frozen with pain.

This light isn't concerned whether this family is known to us or not, only that it shines on those in their time of sorrow.

And that it somehow finds its way into the hearts of those hanging onto life with hope.

Join me in May and run 50K or donate whatever you can to shine a light for the families of Kalyanpuri Slum.
